Fighting transnational organized wildlife crime
Winter 2020
Our planet's wildlife is being decimated.

The global trafficking of wildlife continues relentlessly, driving many species toward extinction. Massive efforts to raise awareness and reduce demand aren't slowing one of the world's most lucrative forms of transnational organized crime, and time is running out.

We won't get a second chance

When something isn't working you need to do something different. That's exactly why the Wildlife Justice Commission (WJC) was created and in just a few years the results are clear. Taking on organized crime networks by providing actionable intelligence, showing governments that countering wildlife trafficking is a critical priority and providing law enforcement with the needed tools works.

Our undercover investigators infiltrate trafficking networks to drive high-level criminals out of the shadows while unearthing information that our intelligence team, the largest of its kind in the world, analyzes to give law enforcement a critical edge in the fight against transnational organized wildlife crime.

At the same time, we work with governments to make sure they act with the speed and decisiveness the scale of these crimes demand. Even the eleventh hour is not too late if we take action.

We can do this: together

It's time to bring a model that works to the US and take the fight to save wildlife to the next level

Welcome to the Friends of Wildlife Justice Commission

Now that we have demonstrated that dangerous and daunting is not the same as impossible, we are ready for the country at the heart of the global fight for wildlife. The US has some of the broadest and toughest laws, is a top destination for trafficked wildlife and a powerful driver –for over a century– in the effort to prohibit wildlife trafficking.

Where there is a will, there is always a way. Join us!
